Cheers to sunny days

Mike Zielke, Ryan Gubic, Jeffe Li and Melissa Armanious were glad to soak up some rays on a 17th Avenue patio yesterday — after nearly two weeks of rain. The Calgary Downtown Association is encouraging Calgarians to find their favourite sun spot among the 60-plus patios in and around the city's core.

City censoring 'sad'

Former sex worker speaks out after officials pull art display

By KRISTA SYLVESTER Metro Calgary

A former sex trade worker is speaking out about the city pulling her and her peer's art exhibit from city hall after initially approving it.

The woman, who wanted to remain anonymous, told Metro she was "saddened" and "disappointed" their experiences were being shelved after only three hours on display Monday.

>> The former sex trade worker and four researcher peers, also former sex workers, spent a year on the photograph exhibition in hopes of sharing their experiences and helping other women in the trade.

"It's like we're the big fat elephant in the middle of the room everyone wants to avoid. It's sad - this is an issue happening everyday and nobody wants to acknowledge it," she

The two pieces of art that were reportedly the cause of the controversy depicted pennies on the street, and the other a mutilated Barbie doll.

The Barbie doll was to show that when a woman comes out of the sex trade she is in bits and pieces," she said. "I have been out of the trade for seven years and I'm still trying to put myself back together."

Gayla Rogers, head of the social work faculty at U of C who helped initiate the program, said a few opportunities have risen since the controversy began.

"It's been nice to see other places standing up and offering their space for the art to be shown, because we think it is important it is shown." Rogers said.

Alberta to cover HPV vaccine

The Alberta government approved a vaccine program yesterday that will protect girls from the human papillomavirus, which can cause cervical cancer.

Starting in the next school year, girls entering Grades 6 and 9 will be eligible for the three voluntary shots with parental consent.

Alberta Health and Wellness said the vaccine is safe and effective when given early.

Education Minister Dave Hancock said the immunization is important in protecting young girls from the virus.

"This voluntary immunization program is really about taking preventative action to keep our female students healthy as they grow into young, successful adults," he said.

Power future bleak: EPCOR prez

Stations are maxed out, reserves low

By NEIL MACKINNON Metro Calgary

He might not have wanted to sound like a "fear-monger" or an "alarmist" but EPCOR president Don Lowry's predictions about Alberta's energy future were dire, indeed.

"If we do nothing, we're a bug headed for a windshield," said Lowry after a Calgary Chamber of Commerce luncheon yesterday, expressing the need for the province to drastically increase its power transmission capacities, which haven't had any major upgrades in two decades, while provincial energy reserves have dropped by more than 15 per cent in the past five years.

"Liken it to the reserve tank in your car — we're damn near empty."

Lowry said maxed out power stations are "a major threat" to the stability of both the national and provincial conservation having little net effect

» Lowry also took aim at Alberta's 500-megawatt wind power capacity, which is inconsistent as the wind isn't always blowing, and said conservation efforts through solar power and energy efficient lighting have a very little net effect of about five per cent on the broader scheme.

"As communities grow, as businesses grow, they need transmission lines to bring them power and if we don't start to build them, we're going to drive business and people to other jurisdictions that have got better infrastructure," he said.

"It's all really interesting," he said, adding Alberta's population has doubled and is expected to grow another 25 per cent, creating an absolute need to bring more power online. "We can't conserve our way to that point."

Research aims to get kids up in class

U of C Kinesiology professor and childhood obesity expert Dr. Tish Doyle-Baker has helped develop a useful tool for teachers with the goal of introducing physical activity into the classroom.

"Even the simplest movements can make a difference in attention and memory and has been associated with reducing blood glucose levels." Baker told Metro.

Baker said early trials have shown the kids were very receptive to the idea of getting up and dancing for a few minutes to a tune or theme, and sitting back down.

MADD angry over decision

By JEFF CUMMINGS Metro Edmonton

Anti-drunk driving activists are furious that a notorious northern Alberta drunk driver who killed a mother and three children in an alcohol-fuelled, head-on crash will not be declared a dangerous offender.

"How many more people does he need to kill before he is considered a dangerous offender?" asked Margaret Miller, national president for MADD Canada, in a phone interview.

Raymond Charles Yellowknee faces a sentence of 20 years in prison minus four years credit for time already served and has been declared a long-term offender, judge Ernie Walter ruled yesterday

» If the Crown was successful in designating Yellowknee as a dangerous offender, it would have been the first time in Canada that a serial drunk driver would have achieved such a status.

in Slave Lake.

Yellowknee will also require 10 years of supervision once he is released and is banned from driving for life.

The 35-year-old man pleaded guilty to four counts of drunk driving causing death in 2006, along with other offences related to evading police while driving. Yellowknee has also faced 71 charges related to impaired driving since he was 18, but has only been in jail for one year.

Police looking for sexual predator

SOUTHEAST City cops are searching for a predator after a 14-year-old girl was sexually assaulted in the city's southeast Wednesday morning.

Just before 9 a.m., a young girl was approached from behind and groped while waiting for her bus in the 200 block of 90 Ave. SE. When the girl turned around the suspect ran away.

He is described as an Asian male between 30-40years-old and is about 5feet-4 tall with a medium build. He was wearing jeans and a navy blue and brown jacket and hat.

Anyone with information is asked to call 266-1234 or Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-TIPS (8477).

Dubbed as "speed dating for volunteering" this is one event you will want to be sure you make time for.

The third annual Timeraiser is a unique charity event created to help engage people in their communities by bidding on local art — but instead of giving money, people give their time.

"People in their 20s and 30s definitely have more time than money, and it's a fun way for them to give back to the community," spokesperson Stewart McDonough told Metro.

McDonough said there are 25 pieces of creative art available for bidding, 25 different agencies to volunteer with and bidding stops at 150 hours.

"The reason we do this is to help connect people with non-profit agencies that could use some help and people can find something they really care about."

Timeraiser 2008 is on June 19 at Flames Central and Calgarians need to register online at www.timeraiser.ca.

Sarah Jesberger, Natasha Briere, and Christi Merkel eye the art to be auctioned off at Flames Central next week for a person's time — instead of their money.

Stabbings send four to hospital

By KRISTA SYLVESTER Metro Calgary

Two men are in custody in relation to one of two separate stabbings overnight that sent four men to hospital, one in critical condition.

Police were called to a 7-11 store at 42 Midlake Blvd. SE where they found two men suffering multiple stab wounds. They were both rushed to hospital and one remains in critical condition. A third victim was found nearby and also brought to hospital in stable condition.

Dist. 8 Staff Sgt. Neil Murray told Metro they have two men in custody in relation to that assault. "We believe they may have been responsible for the Midlake stabbing. The two incidents are not related." he added.

The second incident occurred around 5 a.m. yesterday when a man was stabbed in the lower abdomen in the 3300 block of 64 St. NE. The victim remains in serious but stable condition. Police believe the victim knew the suspect.

A Calgary joint-student initiative called The Alberta Solar Decathlon Project won the Energy TV Award for Top Alternative Energy Project. Students from SAIT, U of C and Mount Royal worked together on the project.

Stem cell scams on web

Experts worried false about false healing claims

Some unethical websites and clinics are offering "snake oil" treatments that claim to provide cures using stem cells but are at best raising false hopes, stem cell experts said yester-

The International Society for Stem Cell Research said it wants to counter these misleading claims with a set of guidelines for researchers and the public alike, in part to preserve the reputation of the

"These guidelines are critically important to the future success of the field," said Dr. George Daley, president of the group and a stem cell researcher at Children's Hospital and Harvard Medical School in Boston.

"Not only does the use of untested therapies put patients at risk, it jeopardizes the legitimate practice of all translational stem cell research."

The group declined to name any website or clinic but said they are widely advertised.

The websites say they "can cure any disease you can find in a pathology textbook," said Dr. Giulio Cossu, an Italian stem cell expert.

The researchers told a news conference they hope the standards, which are still being written, will shape research and also let the average patient know what is and what is not available. REUTERS

Food prices remain low in Canada

Here's something to chew on over your morning bowl of cereal: Only 2 per cent of the price is the cost of the grain.

The rest goes to pay for shipping, processing, packaging and advertising, along with heating and lighting the store where it is sold, a Statistics Canada report says.

That's one of the reasons food price inflation remains relatively low in Canada, at 1.2 per cent over the 12 months, even as the price of grain soars on world markets, the study, called Food Prices: A boon for producers, a buffer for consumers, concludes. Canada has the second lowest food price inflation in the world, after Japan.

A rising dollar has made imports cheaper, offsetting higher prices for bread and pasta. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Criminal charges laid over alleged gas collusion

The Competition Bureau says it is investigating gas price fixing in other provinces in the wake of criminal charges and convictions in Quebec.

The bureau announced at. a news conference in Montreal that criminal charges have been laid against 13 people and 11 companies for allegedly fixing gasoline prices in four Quebec markets. This is the first time since 1955 that a gas price fixing prosecution has resulted in convictions, said bureau commissioner Sheriand one individual pleaded guilty yesterday. They were fined a total of $2 million.

Scott said gas retailers in Thetford Mines, Victoriaville, Magog and Sherbrooke allegedly phoned each other to agree on gasoline prices.

Capitals superstar adds Hart, Pearson to trophy shelf

Washington Capitals winger Alexander Ovechkin capped a dazzling season by winning the Hart Trophy as the NHL's most valuable player last night to complete an unprecedented sweep of awards.

Having already claimed the Art Ross trophy as the NHL's leading points scorer (112) and the Maurice (Rocket) Richard trophy for leading the league in goals (65), the 22-year-old Russian also picked up the Lester B. Pearson Award as the NHL's outstanding player as chosen by his peers.

It marks the first time a player has won the Hart, Pearson, Richard and Ross trophies in the same year.

Ovechkin also won a world championship gold medal and the winners are...

- Hart Trophy (MVP) Alex Ovechkin, F, WAS
- Vezina Trophy (Top Goaltender) Martin Brodeur, NJ Norris Trophy (Top Defenceman) Niklas Lidstrom, DET Calder Trophy (Top Rookie) Patrick Kane, F, CHI
- Lady Byng Trophy (Most Sportsmanlike) Pavel Datsyuk, F, DET
- Jack Adams Award (Top Coach) Bruce Boudreau, WAS
- » Selke Trophy (Top Defensive Forward) Pavel Datsyuk, DET
 » Masterton Trophy (Perseverance, Sportsmanship and Dedication to Hockey) Jason Blake, F, TOR
- Pearson Award (Most Outstanding Player as voted by players) - Alex Ovechkin, F, WAS after Russia ended a 15-year title drought beating Canada in the championship game in Quebec City last month.

The Caps sniper easily outpointed Pittsburgh's Evgeni Malkin and Calgary's Jarome Iginla in Hart balloting.

"Next year is a big year for me and for Capitals," Ovechkin said. "I want to win everything so maybe next year the Stanley Cup."

Other awards handed out at the NHL's gala evening included a sixth Norris Trophy as the league's top defenseman for Nicklas Lidstrom, the captain of the Stanley Cup champion Detroit Red Wings.

Teammate Pavel Datsyuk picked up two trophies — the Frank Selke (top defensive forward) and Lady Byng (most gentlemanly player).

New Jersey's Martin Brodeur won his fourth Vezina Trophy in the past five seasons as the NHL's top netminder.

Washington Capitals winger Alexander Ovechkin poses with the Hart Memorial Trophy, the Lester B. Pearson Award, the Art Ross Trophy and the Maurice "Rocket" Richard Trophy last night after the 2008 NHL Awards in Toronto.

Celts make miracle comeback

Boston just 1 win away from title

CELTICS 97 LAKERS 91

The Boston Celtics used their defence to generate one of the greatest comebacks in playoff history and now stand one win from their first championship since 1986

Paul Pierce scored 20 points as the Celtics rallied from a 24-point first-half deficit to beat the Los Angeles Lakers last night in Game 4 of the NBA Finals. Boston's defence locked down on Kobe Bryant and outscored the Lakers 57-33 in the second half.

The Celtics, trying for their record 17th championship, lead the best-of-seven series 3-1 by virtue of just their third road victory in this year's playoffs.

Kevin Garnett added 16 points and 11 rebounds, and Ray Allen made a huge contribution with 19 points and nine rebounds.

Late penalty saves co-host Austria

Croatia underlined their growing reputation as Euro 2008's most dangerous dark horse by stunning tournament favourites Germany 2-1 and earning a quarterfinal berth in a day of enthralling Group B action yesterday.

The Germans next face

co-hosts Austria who rescued a 1-1 draw against Darijo Srna and Ivica Olic scored for Croatia, while Lukas Podolski replied for Germany.

Ivica Vastic's penalty in the 93rd minute for Austria after Sebastian Proedl was hauled down in the Polish area, also ensured that the fast-improving Croatians joined Portugal in the last eight with a group game still to contest. RELITERS

Chinese legend en garde for Canada

t about 10:30 a.m. yesterday, Jujie Luan received a clean bill of health from her doctor in Edmonton.

What does this have to do with the price of tea in China?

Well, nothing, but it certainly will increase the price of Olympic tickets in China.

Luan, see, is a Chinese legend. She won a gold medal for China in fencing in 1984. She is officially listed as one of China's top 50 sports stars. Her image has adorned Chinese postage stamps. A movie chronicled her life. There were several Chinese bestselling books on her. Chinese youngsters still study her feats in textbooks. She is as recognizable in China as, say, Wayne Gretzky in Canada.

You get the picture. Now, Luan is hoping to become a two-country legend. At the ripe young age of 50, and after retirement stints of 12 and eight years, Luan qualified recently to represent Canada at this summer's Olympics in China, although she wasn't certain she'd be able to compete until her doctor's appointment yesterday.

"I've been very tired lately," she told me via cellphone as she left the doctor's office. "I needed blood tests. It's my thyroid. but it's OK and I'm going to Beijing."

She'll be a scalper's delight there. She'll draw capacity crowds. She may be the most compelling story at the Games.

Her return is "already all over the Chinese newspapers," said Luan's husband, Daiin Gu. "I don't think it's common knowledge in Canada, but it's major, major news there."

Jujie insisted she isn't nervous. "I'm fine mentally," she said, "I've been through a lot."

True. She joined China's national fencing team at 16 and became the world's best despite a serious kidnev ailment. In 1983, she grew fond of Edmonton while at the World University Games and moved to the city six years later to study English at the University of Alberta. She became a Canadian citizen and was inducted into Edmonton's Hall of Fame this

"We would have returned to China, but our oldest child was born here with Down syndrome and we knew we couldn't get affordable health care there," Gu explained, "so we stayed.

"Canada's great. I do nothing. Jujie teaches and coaches (fencing in Edmonton). Our children (Jessica, 16, Jerrica, 14, and Daniel, 10) are happy."

They'd be happier, of course if mom wins another medal, but Gu has cautioned them.

"She has no chance " he said. "Fencing is a young people's sport. Jujie has great technique and she dreams of another medal, but reality is reality."

Marty York has been a groundbreaking sports columnist and broadcaster in Canada for decades.

Master fencer Jujie Luan, who has taught the sport at the Edmonton Fencing club for 20 years, will be representing Canada at the Beijing Olympics in August.

>> Green Day (Fall): They have to follow up American Idiot. Talk about a tough act to follow. Ignore the Foxboro Hot Tubs project from earlier this year. A mere distraction.

»Killers (Fall): One of the hardest-working bands in the world today. We might hear a single as early as August with an album to follow in early October. AC/DC (Fall): Their first album since 2000's Stiff Upper Lip. Word is that they'll follow the Eagles by offering this disc exclusively at Wal-Mart. Rumours suggest that Fleetwood Mac will do the same.

»U2 (Fall): After messing around with Daniel Lanois in Morocco last year, they're now in serious lockdown mode. If past history is anything to go on, we'll get the first single sometime in early September and the album in November. And don't expect a Radiohead-like giveaway. or the band chanting the song's title in the back-ground. It's a far cry from the group's usual melodic pop affairs, something drummer Patrick Hallahan is well aware of.

"I heard this particular song and I was like, 'What the hell is this?'" he says, recalling the moment when James played the band the tune for the first time. "Jim is one of my best friends and you think you know the guy and you get this and I'm like, 'Maybe I don't talk to you enough."

It wasn't long before the five-piece warmed up to the surprisingly catchy tune. Hallahan explains that the track was simply mean to be a fun listen, but there's more going on here than just a band wanting to have a good time. Evil Urges is easily one of My Morning Jacket's more eclectic offerings, with quirky tracks, straight-up southern tunes, and infectious rock 'n' roll littering the

"We wanted to challenge ourselves," says Hallahan. "We tried to get out of our normal comfort zone of seclusion and unlimited time."

To do that the group recorded in New York City—it's the first time they've ventured outside Louisville to make a record. "We were working in a studio where we could only go for 12 hours at a time," he reveals. "We've never been faced with limitations like that before. It yielded a different outcome because we had to focus more."

lahan says growing as a group trumps popular opinion. "We had to take these steps for our mental stability," he explains. "We have to grow, change and create. In order to do that we have to try new things and push ourselves. We just ask that people stick with us."

But pushing themselves wasn't easy. Hallahan even spent a few days wondering if recording in New York was the right decision. "It was stressful at times. It was a lot of work and really changed the way we recorded. But." he adds, "it was a lot of fun too."

In the end My Morning Jacket achieved their goal for Evil Urges — it's focused, diverse and, for better or for worse, it shows that a 10-year-old band can still evolve. "It will piss some people off and make others very happy," says Hallahan. "We're still catching flack for not making another At Dawn."

Another shot at the Hulk Bullying

The Incredible Hulk

Stars Edward Norton, Liv Tyler

PG

By RICK MCGINNIS for Metro Calgary

REVIEW THE FIRST and best sign that director Louis Leterrier understands the job in front of him in the second movie take on Marvel Comic's Hulk is the winking cameo he gives Lou Ferrigno — the big green monster in the '70s TV series — and the late Bill Bixby, glimpsed in a rerun of The Courtship Of Eddie's Father.

For the audience buying tickets for the film this weekend, Ed Norton will be playing Bruce Banner, the character made famous for them by Bixby back in the '70s, and not by poor Eric Bana in the ill-starred Ang Lee film of 2003 to which this is, ostensibly, a sequel.

Like an embarrassing relative or your high school haircut, Lee's film is something no one wants to discuss, but its shadow hangs over Leterrier's film.

Leterrier has no interest in departing from the comic book film form, to his credit; the film sets up the scenario quickly — Banner in exile in a favela in Brazil, searching for a cure for his "condition" — and rewards us with a big action set piece and the first appearance of Banner's hulking alter ego within the first half hour.

We get the love interest (Liv Tyler), the bad guys (William Hurt and Tim Roth) and the stock conspiracy theory plot mechanism with a secret military program; everything in its place and a place for everything.

What Ang Lee overlooked — or ignored — was that the comic book film is rarely interested in innovation, and especially innovation that deprives it of its brute thrills in favour of a more nuanced exploration of character.

Like it or not, the successful comic franchise film craves the familiar how else do vou explain the roar that issued from the preview audience during the film's coda, which featured a cameo by Robert Downey Jr. as Tony Stark - aka Iron Man which borrowed the good karma of summer 2008's much more successful bigscreen comic franchise to give its audience the "happy ending" they craved?

Bullying — with a twist

Stars Greg Timmermans
Director Nic Balthazar

By RICK McGINNIS for Metro Calgary

REVIEW WHILE MOST

teenagers long to connect and be understood, it's a cutting irony that they spend most of their time harassing each other and enforcing cliques. As ironies go, it's one that offers little bemused comfort for anyone caught up in its machinery, and Nic Balthazar's Ben X is a portrait of one such victim.

Based on his own novel, a bestseller in his native Belgium, it's the story of a boy suffering from Asperger's Syndrome, one of the milder manifestations of autism. As his father tells the camera late in the film, he's really not suffering from it as much as he's being made to suffer by the bullies at his school.

The trajectory of bullied teen stories is so well-established that we can't help but anticipate the inevitable – the tawdry suicide and/or bloody lunge at vengeance with its heartbreaking toll of innocent victims.

What we get is very different; a hopeful scenario that should make us feel more than a bit ashamed for coming to expect, and even look forward to, some eruption of violent catharsis.

Early setup spoils what's left of The Happening

The HAPPENING

JIS

By RICK MCGINNIS for Metro Calgary

THERE WAS once a punk rock novelty song recorded by a fellow named John Otway with the unlikely title Beware Of The Flowers 'Cause I'm Sure They're Gonna Get You Yeah.

It was a daft rave-up that still managed to keep your head bobbing even after the humour of the chorus had worn off, but no one ever imagined that someone would make a whole movie based on its premise. This little gag — a very little one, I'll shamefully admit — was the only thing that kept me smiling once the pivotal premise of The Happening revealed itself.

The very great problem with M. Night Shyamalan's films is that once he departs from the nameless dread so painstakingly created in their setup, they've lost most of their reason to exist. He's a horror director uninterested in shocking you silly, and a maker of thrillers with one big plot point on which everything pivots.

The Happening begins with a high school science teacher (Mark Wahlberg) quizzing his students about some inexplicable and ominous disturbances in nature's balance, just as several cities in the U.S. northeast are being hit with what looks like a chemical attack. Things get serious fast, and he flees the city with his wife (Zooey Deschanel) and best friend (John Leguizamo), and they quickly find themselves stranded in the country as the suicide-inducing contagion closes in on them.

The film is a bit of a departure for the director, since he reveals the big premise early on, and not near the end, sparing the audience the eye-rolling revelations that made Signs and The Village so retroactively disappointing. Unfortunately, that means you can start rolling your eyes and giggling earlier, with the first film that makes itself the punch line to global warming's joke.

Young People F---ING

REVIEW THE FIRST kiss in Young People F-ing, the sex comedy that dares not speak its full name, is tentative and almost chaste.

The smooth is accompanied by mutual insults: "You're an idiot!" "No, you're an idiot!"

Not exactly the nationshaking boot-knocking you were expecting? You could be forgiven for thinking YPF would literally sizzle out of the projector, given all the heat its title has provoked from clueless politicians and self-righteous moralists maker Martin Gero's very funny and insightful feature debut is far less shocking that its detractors - most of whom haven't even seen it would have you believe.

In truth, Canadian film-

Older canoodlers, those of us pointedly excluded by the title (but let's forgive that, shall we?), will recognize YPF as a slightly raunchier version of Love, American Style, a TV series popular in the early 1970s.

It shares the same sketch format of 20-something and 30-something couples working out various love dilemmas. The only difference here is that one of the couples is a threesome.

The actors are the finest troupe of fresh Canuck faces to appear on film in many a moon, and they're all totally game.

All of them progress through a six-part sensual adventure, marked by chapters: Prelude, Foreplay, Sex, Interlude, Orgasm and Afterglow.

Despite the formula format, there are a few surprises to be had, along with a practical demonstration of the best kind of music for f-ing.

If you're looking for porn, you've come to the wrong place. There are a few bare breasts, a couple bare asses, one naughty strap-on and that's about it.

Adam Sandler plays the title role in the film, a sort of Israeli James Bond with a secret dream of styling hair in New York City, who fakes his death and goes off to live his blow-dried, '80s-inspired dream. Sandler plays Zohan with an Israeli accent so painstakingly bad that it becomes its own joke.

Kung Fu Panda introduces us to Po (Jack Black), a lazy panda who dreams of one day becoming a martial arts master, but is simply too fat and lazy to make it happen. Kids will love watching a dumb panda fumbling around as he tries to save his village from destruction.

Ben X director talks Net bullying, gamers

By RICK McGINNIS for Metro Calgary

FEATURE COMPUTERS

ARE used more and more to give the illusion that a director filmed in some impossible location — a distant point in history or some place that's only existed in mythology. Nic Balthazar's film Ben X might be one of the first films that takes its cameras, so to speak, into landscapes meant only to exist in computers — the world created for a multi-game. It's the world where the film's protagonist, a teenage misfit suffering from Asperger's Syndrome, prefers to live, as a refuge from the bullying he suffers at school. Technology turns on him, however, when his classmates' camera phones capture his humiliation and the video ends up online.

player role-playing video

The Internet, Balthazar says, "has taken bullying to another level, and has given birth to this phenomenon the name itself is so sarcastic - of 'happy slapping.'

It shows how premeditated this sort of evil can be because we always associate bullying with 'Oh, well, it's just teasing, it's a joke and maybe it got out of hand.' We see how you have to hit or degrade someone in public, and then start filming it, and then upload it and download it and send links around, so maybe it never was the joke that people said it was

"So that's where technology reveals our true nature, and shows how bad we can be, because everybody's watching it - these are the most clicked-on films on YouTube '

The success of his film, and the book on which it's based, is taking Balthazar to Hollywood, where there's talk of an American version of the story.

It's an adaptation that shouldn't be so difficult. considering the homogeneity of youth culture around the world, unified by communication technology into a place where the same movies, music and games are shared literally overnight by a community who have bypassed conventional media and the old, physical model of buying and selling goods.

The gaming community has responded to Ben X with positive word of mouth though, inevitably, little in actual ticket sales.

"You need to hand them this," Balthazar says, "within gamer culture, they're very quick and smart, and good at saying, 'This is a cool game' and 'This isn't a cool game,' and you can be dead in five days before the reviews are even out ... I'm happy to say that they've helped us so much, because, of course, we first came out without a promotional campaign, and they passed on the word, and said that this was the first film that was cool about gaming and showed it the way it is."

Roth revels in role as villain

Incredible Hulk star doesn't mind being bad guy

By STEVE GOW for Metro Calgary

FEATURE EVERY GREAT superhero deserves a great villain and even the monstrous behemoth that is the Hulk is no different.

Lucky for the producers behind The Incredible Hulk, Hollywood's Go-To Guy for playing the perfect bad dude was available when they called.

Enter Tim Roth.

Having played everything from an evil monkey in Planet of the Apes to a love struck robber in Pulp Fiction and even earning a coveted Academy Award nomination as the scheming villain in 1995's Rob Roy, Roth has earned a well-deserved reputation as the ideal rapscallion.

"I don't mind (playing villains) if they're kind of juicy," Roth recently told me while promoting the Incredible Hulk.

"If I'm having a good time with it, the audience tends to see that."

With the Incredible Hulk, Roth returns to form playing Emil Blonsky, an over-the-hill soldier who craves the thrill of power.

When he purposely gets a greater dose of the same gamma radiation that turned rival Bruce Banner into The Hulk, he quickly takes advantage of his new beastly power — one that only the green-skinned superhero can match.

"It was a seriously large

« I don't mind (playing villains) if they're kind of juicy ... if I'm having a good time with it, the audience tends to see that.»

amount of fun we had making it." says Roth.

But the shoes of his character (The Abomination) are not easy to fill. The history of The Hulk goes back to 1962 when he debuted in comic-book form.

Five years later, The Abomination made its first appearance and has since become one of The Hulk's most revered foes.

"I was wary of (the fans) because they're tough," says Roth.

"But they've actually gone through the roof. They love it!" And hardcore fans aren't the only ones appreciating Roth's villainous portrayal.

Critics have also been kind to the latest Hulk blockbuster. It might not even be a shock to Roth if he found out the role returned him to, dare I say it, awards territory.

"(The Abomination) kind of reminds me of the Rob Roy guy in a way." admits Roth. "As clumsily as I play it, it's still quite carefully written so it's sort of a bad guy experience that the audience can enjoy."

The Incredible Hulk opens today.

Beating the boys at their own game

Hathaway more than holds her own with comic actors

By GLEN MILLER for Metro Calgary

FEATURE ONE, TWO, THREE, four male actors . . . and keep counting the male universe on the set of Get Smart.

Enter the lone major female star — Anne Hathaway. As Agent 99, the 25-year-old had a ball playing with the boys during the four-month shoot. Most notably acting with the lead boy — Steve Carell, Agent 86, in the good vs. evil movie that opens in theatres next Friday.

As it turns out, Hathaway isn't only a good actress onscreen, but admits deft subliminal acting by hiding her nerves from her co-stars. After all, such major players as Carell, Alan Arkin (chief) and Terence Stamp (Ziegfried) have an array of film credits.

"It always is (nerve-wracking), but I'm really good at hiding it," Hathaway told Metro. "I didn't want to make everyone else around me uncomfortable by talking about how obsessed I am - with them ...

I very easily could have geeked out everyday, but I don't think we would have got a lot of work done "I was very intimidated by everything that was going on, but I chose to try and appear that I was cool and knew what I was doing."

Get Smart, the big-screen version, weighs in with an abundance of action and comedy mix, just like the legendary Emmy Award winning TV series (1965-70) that has gained more fans over the years through syndication.

But according to Carell, it was Hathaway who was turning heads with her ... speed.

"There were several scenes in the movie where we are running toward Disney Hall (downtown L.A.) at full tilt," said Carell.

"I was running as fast as I possibly could run. Anne Hathaway was wearing 4-5-6-inch heels and she was kicking my ass. And I have no idea how that is physically possible."

And then there's those occasions on set when real life takes over and you just have to wing it. For Hathaway, that would be having a health issue during the time she had to kiss Carell during a romantic scene. Due to a mix of using a contact solution that was pulled off the shelves last year, and a simultaneous sinus infection, Hathaway got pink eye.

"And my tears kind of got in my mouth, (before kissing him)," Hathaway said, laughing. "It was very glamorous."

Carell escaped infection. But as Michael Scott in The Office, he probably wouldn't have.

THE CRITIC

 Anne Hathaway on analyzing her acting:

"I hate everything the first time I see it. Everything. Every last performance I've ever seen for the first time... the best I've ever given myself was, well, it didn't suck and that was for Brokeback (Mountain). I'm really critical."

Young People speak out

Time to get over controversial title, film's stars sav

By CHRIS ATCHISON for Metro Calgary

FEATURE ACTORS Ennis Esmer and Natalie Lisinska aren't quite sure what all the fuss is about.

Their new film has raised the ire of politicians and some in the movie-going public, few of whom have actually seen the picture.

It should be noted that it contains no violence, that bare breasts and a couple of bottoms are the only nudity on display, and with the exception of some explicit language, the sexual content is far from gratuitous.

Maybe it's the title, Young People F-king, that's raised more than a few eyebrows across this great land.

"People assume things out of nowhere," Esmer says. "They hear the title, think of something else and think that's what the movie is about."

"I think the universal reaction to it from people who have seen it is, 'Oh, it's really sweet, isn't it?" Lisinska adds.

The film follows a group of 20and 30-somethings at roadblocks in their private lives. Directed by Canadian Martin Gero, and cowritten by Gero and Canadian actor Aaron Abrams, it's an exploration of the complexities of relationships, rather than a gratuitous romp.

Still, the film has become something of a symbol for Canadian filmmakers threatened by the prospect of the federal Heritage Department being able to pull the financial plug on projects it considers offensive or inappropriate - powers granted under Bill C-10

Esmer opines: "If the ladies at my stepmother's Shabbat dinner are OK with the content of the movie, then the Conservatives should just tone it down."

The film opens in theatres

Grey's Anatomy star declined to be nominated

ACTRESS KATHERINE

HEIGL, a surprise Emmy winner last year for her role on the hit TV drama Grev's Anatomy, has bowed out of this year's race in an apparent swipe at producers for diminishing her presence on the series.

Heigl, 29, quietly chose not to submit her name for consideration as an Emmy contender this year but explained her rather conspicuous absence from the ballot when asked by Tom O'Neil, columnist for the Los Angeles Times' showbiz awards website TheEnvelope.com.

"I did not feel that I was given the material this season to warrant an Emmy nomination, and in an effort to maintain the integrity of the academy organization, I withdrew my name from contention," she said in a statement posted by O'Neil.

"In addition, I did not want to potentially take away an opportunity from an actress who was given such materials."

The lengthy list of performers vying for Emmy recognition from fellow members of the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences was posted in recent days. Nominations will be announced on July 17.

Heigl was the upset winner of last year's prime-time Emmy as best supporting actress in a drama for her role as Dr. Izzie Stevens on the ABC hospital series, beating out two other costars for the award - Sandra Oh and Chandra Wilson

It was the show's biggest Emmy triumph since the 2005 inception of the series, which helped lead the way in ABC's ratings rebound three years ago and ranks as one of the most watched dramas on U.S. television.

But while Heigl has since emerged as Hollywood's latest "it" girl following the success of her breakout film comedy Knocked Up, her profile on Grey's Anatomy this past season has been noticeably reduced.

As noted by O'Neil, one of her more meaty story lines on the show this year involved her character saving a deer that had caused a string of automobile accidents.

"What she deserved after winning the Emmy was a heightened profile on the show, not a reduced one," he said, adding that she appeared to be "logging an internal protest" with the show's producers.

While not uncommon for Emmy veterans to withdraw from contention in later years – as Candice Bergen and Bill Cosby have in the past - they typically have done so after repeated wins to give others a shot.

Kreesha Turner bounces into pop land with a sassy R&B sound.

By Noreen Flanagan Executive Editor

reesha Turner may be the only artist to credit our national anthem with helping her discover her voice. As a $child, the \, Edmonton-born \, singer \, tap \, danced$ to Oscar Peterson tunes, but it was n't until sheauditioned for a church choir at 15 that she knew she could sing. "My mother wanted me to spend a year in Jamaica so I'd understand my cultural background," she explains. "My friends were in the youth choir there, so they wanted me to try out. I didn't know what to sing, so the conductor suggested my national anthem." Turner made the cut and went on to "fall in love with music." After she graduated from high school, she told her parents that she'd spend five years pursuing a singing career; if she failed, she'd hit the books. This June, her 23rd birthday, marks that deadline. With a co-deal with EMI Canada and Virgin USA and the launch of her debut album, Passion, this August, Turner won't be resorting to Plan B. Her song Bounce With Me, an infectious R&B pop tune, has been featured on Desperate Housewives, Gossip Girl and The Hills. "I was at home in Edmonton watching Gossip Girl and my song came on," says Turner. "It was so exciting!"

alk-show host Oprah Winfrey is still the world's most powerful celebrity, BBC News Online reports Forbes magazine as saying.

The 54-year-old came top of its annual countdown for the second year running, and the fifth time overall.

Golfer Tiger Woods came second, just ahead of actress Angelina Jolie, former Destiny's Child singer Beyoncé Knowles and soccer star David Beckham.

Forbes' list is based on celebrities' earnings, Internet presence and press, television and radio coverage.

Other stars in the Top 10 include reformed pop band The Police, in joint seventh place with rapper Jay-Z.

Harry Potter author J.K. Rowling is ranked at nine, having come in 48th in last year's rundown.

Her earnings over the past 12 months - estimated to be $300 million US - make her the wealthiest celebrity on the list.

Actor Brad Pitt is ranked in 10th place, making him and Jolie one of two "power couples" to make the Top 10. Jay-Z and Knowles are the other, having secretly married

HOROSCOPE

ARIES | March 21-April 20

Your ability to find happiness needs some fine-tuning. Speak lovingly to a special person. Be more rational with a needy person.

TAURUS | April 21-May 21

A young man will cause problems. Everything will return to normal soon. A coward will shock everyone by taking action.

GEMINI | May 22-June 21

Be ready for some frustrating conversations. You'll have to use your ability to understand motives. You'll decide to test an absurd notion.

CANCER | June 22-July 22

You'll be forced to set boundaries. Nobody will be very happy about a big mistake. Make plans to reach out to a friend.

LEO July 23-Aug. 23

You're able to relax with a member of the opposite sex. Have a good laugh about silliness. A mischief maker asks for help.

Love will bloom for an older female. Tone down your approach to a joker. Someone will back you up in a fresh scheme.

LIBRA | Sep. 23-Oct. 23

Someone precious asks you for a favour. Making a graceful exit will be the best choice. Depression comes from having extra work.

SCORPIO Oct. 24- Nov. 22

A new schedule will make people uncomfortable. Ask a bureaucrat some serious questions. Avoid having too many drastic ideas.

SAGITTARIUS | Nov. 23- Dec. 21

Don't push anyone around in order to get ahead. Seek a miracle by taking responsibility. A woman will heed your call.

CAPRICORN | Dec. 22-Jan. 20

A pleasant meeting will cheer you. You'll have to work with a team to get a job done. Rules will inhibit the resolution of your desires.

AQUARIUS | Jan. 21-Feb. 18

A suspicious man will give you the benefit of a doubt. Get ready to shake things up. You can implement your secret plan.

PISCES | Feb. 19-Mar. 20

A woman will say something about love. Acknowledge an error. A collaborator will appear at the right time. AVATAR VENUS

The digits 1 through 9 will appear exactly once in each row, each column, and each zone. (A zone is an outlined 3x3 grid within the larger puzzle grid. There are nine of these zones in the puzzle.) Do not enter a digit into a box if it already appears elsewhere in the same 3x3 zone, or in the same row across the puzzle, or column down the puzzle.
